informal interactions on rounds and throughout the workday. Fourth year students are also involved in teaching third year students, a great learning opportunity for both. Teaching helps solidify one's knowledge and motivates understanding at a level that enables one to explain the concepts. All members of the team should serve as models of professionalism. "Physicians are asked to deliver professional care in a complex and ever-evolving health care system and medical educators have a critical role to play in maintaining and enhancing professionalism" (Stern & Papadakis, 2006). Our students also can serve as models of professionalism. This team approach is a great learning experience for all.

M4 SPOTLIGHT

The Fourth Year students have been gaining clinical experience as both teachers and students while working as members of medical teams in our affiliate hospitals. The teams include attendings, residents, 3rd and 4th year students. They are able to learn not only from their attendings, but also from interns and residents in both formal conferences as well as more

INFORMATION FROM M4 TEAM

All the students have put in their ERAS applications. This is the first of many steps in the residency match process. Congratulations! In the next few months students will need time for interviews. The students and their attendings can work out the time off. This is a very exciting time for our inaugural class.
